Bright, radiant tones make this a masterpiece that will bring vibrancy to any home or office. Minimum bid $500

#005 Splatter

This Jackson Pollock inspired piece brings Abstract Expressionism to Clariden's Casa students. Just as Pollock dripped and poured paint onto canvasses that were placed on his studio floor, so too did Ms. Crawford and her young students. By using a variety of blue, green, red, and metallic hues, this masterpiece can be categorized as a stunning success. The children LOVED being allowed to throw paint, and these fun drips could bring life to any playroom! Minimum bid $500

#007 Mosaics

Each of six large, eye-catching shadow boxes adorns a beautifully colorful, mosaic design. The concept for this collection of masterpieces was presented to the students in Mrs. Riordan's lower elementary class as a chance to learn about a cultural art form from Africa. Students were taught about a form of Namibian art, which utilizes broken ostrich eggshells to create contemporary art forms. The students were given small pieces of wood that had been painted with a variety of metallic paints and closely resemble the thick shell pieces of an ostrich eggshell. The students then drew, by hand, random "crackle" designs to each faux shell piece. Next, came the planning and design stage as six teams gathered, contemplated, and created their plans for a unique design for adhesion to the shadow box. The result, a masterful combination of complementing designs to hang together or apart. Minimum bid $500

#010 Fade-Away Girl

This piece was a cooperative effort between Primary students and the Senior Class. Under the guidance of Ms. Crawford, Primary level students arbitrarily placed their handprints onto a large canvas using three colors of paint. The older students then created an outlined drawing of an elegant lady on top of the handprints. By utilizing background and foreground colors that match, one can create the impression of a silhouette, much like the "Fade-Away Girls" of Life Magazine from the 1920s. This unique piece uses soft, blue colors accented by black and white. It is a truly elegant and creative piece that will add just the right amount of cool color to any space and bring hours of peaceful reflection to a busy space. Minimum bid $500

#014 Steamboat Willie

The Upper School Art I Class created a playful piece of cartoon characters from the 1920s and 30s.
